

Subject: Formal Disclaimer of Liability – Editors and Authors of [Book Title]

Dear [Publisher's Name],

As the lead editor of the forthcoming volume [Book Title], I am writing on behalf of all editors to formally and unequivocally disclaim any liability regarding the content of the contributed chapters.

We do not assume any responsibility for potential issues related to:

- Textual or graphical plagiarism;
- The inclusion of retracted, falsified, or otherwise problematic references;
- Any other form of academic misconduct or content irregularity.

We do not have the means to verify originality or conduct plagiarism checks. If [Publisher's Name] wishes to carry out such due diligence, it must be done prior to production. Once the book enters or completes production, we will consider the editorial process closed.

Accordingly, [Publisher's Name] and its affiliates will hold no right to reopen, investigate, or raise claims against the editors or chapter authors after publication, under any circumstances or jurisdiction.

Please acknowledge receipt and acceptance of this position.

Sincerely,

[Your Full Name]

Lead Editor, [Book Title]

[Affiliation]

[Contact Information]

© 2025 ScienceGuardians™.

This template is provided freely and unconditionally for public use. You may copy, modify, adapt, and share it without attribution or permission. Our priority is protecting editors—use it however you need to.